

Curt Menefee
Host of FOX NFL Sunday

Curt Menefee's secret to success comes in three steps: work hard, be passionate, and enjoy life. Throughout his career, Menefee has embodied all three.

Menefee began his career at FOX Sports in 1997 as a sideline reporter. He moved up through the ranks, filling roles as a radio host and play-by-play caller for NFL Europe and NFL on FOX. He gained national notoriety in 2006 when he became the studio host for FOX NFL Sunday alongside Terry Bradshaw, Howie Long, Jimmy Johnson, and Michael Strahan. Fox NFL Sunday is the most-watched, award-winning NFL pregame show.

Menefee spent ten years as a top New York sports broadcaster for FOX5 and MSG, and has hosted the daily two-hour show on The Ticket sports radio in Dallas. Menefee also anchored sports for WTLV-TV (NBC) in Jacksonville, WISC-TV (CBS) in Madison, Wisconsin, and WOI-TV (ABC) in Des Moines, Iowa.

Throughout his work at WNYW FOX5 and MSG in New York, Menefee established himself as one of New York's most popular sportscasters. He has been frequently commended by critics for his upbeat delivery and entertaining approach, and he won the Associated Press Award for Best Sports Reporter while in New York.

In Dallas, Menefee spent time at KTVT-TV as the sports director and weeknight sports anchor. During this time, he won four Katie Awards, the Texas equivalent of an Emmy, for Best Sportscaster and Best Sports Special.

With additional appearances on MLB, UEFA Champions League, and International Boxing Organization broadcasts, Menefee has amassed a list of credentials rivaling anyone in the industry.

Outside the studio, Menefee is a well-known traveler. Since graduating from college, Menefee has been to all seven continents, nearly 70 countries, and many of the world's most famous landmarks. His favorite vacation spots include New Zealand and much of South America. Menefee approaches both his life and his career from a truly global perspective.
